A Rough Guide to using the Potteries Paddlers Forum.

A forum is basically a noticeboard where all the members can post notes for others to read.

With our's it's better than that as it includes a calendar, the ability to send private messages etc. but more on that later. Parts of the board will be restricted so that only paid up members of the PP can see, or post to, them and only registered folks (PP members or not) will be able to post on the boards to restrict the possibility of spam postings.

When you first click on this link (http://potteriespaddlers.proboards.com) the front screen will come up something like this ...

If you haven't already registered you'll need to in order to see the calendar and to post messages ... click on Register and follow the instructions from in the Guide to Registration document. If you are already registered click on Login and input your username and password to log on.

The screen will now change like so ... just above the advert bar (worth putting up with for the free forum), you'll then see a new icon - Calendar

You can move around in the Calendar using the month forward/back above the days of the week or go straight to a set month using the drop down selector. Above I've gone to May 2010 and you can see that some items are already in there.

I you then click on an Item, eg Anglesea trip ... you get this ... some items will also show links to websites, fliers etc ... Take a look at the KNW and Palm events yourself later.

OK ... so that's how the Calendar works, at the moment Ant & I are the only folks who can put things there, when we've more folks registered we'll set it so that any Potteries Paddlers members can see and post to the Calendar ... but no one else. If you are planning a trip please put it up as a new thread in the Trips etc. Category. To see how lets get back to the forum and posting So click on Home on the Icon bar or Potteries Paddlers Message Board (just above the View Calendar Entry window) to go back to the forunt screen.

If you click on the folder icon in Extras opposite someone's name you can send a personal message for that member to read next time they log on to the forum. I've not hidden the admin email account so you can see that email address here (even though I'm logged in as a non-PP registered forum user), there is also an extra icon in Extras which allows you to email me (or anyone who has set their email address as not-hidden) directly from there ... hidden is good till it's restricted then we'll probably want to see the emails so that we can all email each other ... personal choice.

That's my quick guide to what I've found out so far, you now know as much as I do, so have a play ... I'm pretty sure we can't break it and even if we did it wouldn't take long to set it up again.

Mike.
